

Systems-Centered Training in the Netherlands in 2018

In Systems-Centered Training (SCT[®]) you learn to understand group dynamics by means of direct experience. Since its introduction to the Netherlands in 2010, a growing number of individuals have been integrating the principles of SCT into both their work and private lives. (<http://www.sct-nl.nl>)

SCT is based on 'The Theory of Living Human Systems', developed by Yvonne Agazarian. (www.systemscentered.com). As a member of an SCT ongoing group, you learn to develop both personally and at group level. You will acquire skills for guiding yourself through different development phases, while gaining valuable insights into the group as a living human system with its own qualities, flaws and intrinsic wisdom. The SCT ongoing group enables us to explore uncharted realms of social behavior and gives us tools for creating climates for change, both personally and at group level.

Official SCT curriculum practice is available in the US, the UK, Sweden and the Netherlands. The board of the Stichting SCT Nederland (SCT-NL) is pleased to announce that the two Ongoing Groups led by Susan Gantt and Mike Maher will continue to run in 2018. Both Groups run parallel to each other and come together for a Large Group meeting at the end of each training day.

The SCT Ongoing Training Groups take place in Wageningen and consist of three x 2 day workshops on location, possibly extended with several 1 hour mini-workshops on SCT theory done via conference call.
